EDITOR'S COMMENTS

As we go to press again with the holiday issue of A.R.C., the tumult of the national election lingers on. But, no matter what the crisis, big or small, some things remain the same — for example, our efforts to give you the gift of a good magazine dedicated to preserving radio history.

In that regard, we are constantly amazed at the quality and variety of the material contributed by you subscribers. Gift-giving is certainly reciprocal among radio collectors.

A case in point is our lead article. If Bruce Bergstrom hadn't sent a copy of the photo of the sheepherder with his dog and radio from the book Brand of a Legend, we would never have thought of a covered wagon and Atwater Kent in the same context. The result is that our managing editor, Dorothy Schecter, could pick up on a great story that reminds us of how much radio must have meant to isolated people in the 1920s. And I could quip, "Is this an early car radio?"

Coincidentally, Bob Krockel fired us up with a Eugene Goldbeck photo of Atwater Kent radios piled on a sidewalk in San Antonio, Texas. It happens that I am from the San Antonio area and remember seeing many of the wonderful photos of Texas scenes by this noted photographer. However, I had never seen one featuring radios — another provocative piece of radio history.

No doubt because of its appropriate nickname, the Emerson BD-197, or "Mae West," is often greeted with a chuckle. But, Richard Arnold has reason to laugh long about his unexpected find of a Mae West — that is, if a flea market price of $1,500 in the November 1996 Radiofest report in A.R.C. has held up. Richard provides information that, like the set, is not always easy to find.

A cursory look at Photo Review prompts a question, "When have you seen so many odd names on a 2-page spread?" A Zany-Gill cathedral, a Heacock 4-tube battery set, a Columbia Grafonola, and a German Tefifon radio/tape player — all are rather unusual names for interesting sets. We urge you to add to the variety of these offerings with your Photo Review submissions.

Reports on auctions are an important part of our service to you, and it's a pleasure when they have a wide territorial range. This time we report on events in Nebraska and Vienna, Austria, and two more diverse areas could hardly be found. But, the goal is the same — radio preservation.

Tom Bailey of Bailey and Associates reports on the auction in Nebraska of the Roy Stuhr radio collection, which ran the gamut of early battery sets to cathedrals and consoles, communications receivers, hi-fi, and test equipment. Highlights in the $1,000 to $2,000 range were an Atwater Kent breadboard and a Sparton "Peachbird" mirror radio.

"Our man in Vienna," Erwin Macho, reports again on a Dorotheum auction. As long as you didn't walk in when the Polyphon disk-playing item went for $8,000, you would have found that other prices were very reasonable. Though the radio sets offered at these auctions are largely European, it's interesting for Americans to tune in to interests and prices abroad.

Doug Houston has contributed an excellent article on the Victor Talking Machine Company's exhaustive search for a TRF circuit for its own radio. Victor was forced into this search because RCA controlled the superheterodyne patents. The result was a kind of Rube Goldberg solution called a "Micro-Synchronous" tuning system. One can only wonder what the next level of complexity would have been if RCA hadn't absorbed Victor.

Radio Miscellanea reflects the broad spectrum of our correspondence. Almost anything is apt to show up in the mail — from kudos to corrections, identifications to suggestions. Included is an excerpt from an Internet report on the AWA meet this year. A really satisfied attendee wrapped up his business in one day and left a happy collector.

The Internet. Our Web site continues to have more than 50-thousand page views a month. Be sure to check the site and read the ads as soon as they are released.

December Special. Through December 31, all U.S. shipping of books is by Priority Mail at no additional charge and, as always, all U.S. orders via our Web site order form are shipped free! So, be sure to do your holiday shopping for your collector friends at Antique Radio Classified.

Coming Radio Events. Thirty-six events will take place in the month of December. Of particular note is the 11th Historical Radio Auction at the Auctionhouse Dorotheum on December 6 in Vienna. The date of this auction wisely coincides with the gift-giving season. In addition, our "Mark Your Calendar" section lists another 36 events already scheduled for the year 2001, including some of the major annual meets. It seems radio collecting will carry on through yet another year of this new century.

Happy Collecting and Happy Holidays from all the A.R.C. team — John, Dorothy, Cindie, Tammy, Bobby, Malaika, Ray, Dave, and Lisa!

John V. Terrey, Editor

ON THE COVER

The search for a festive holiday cover ended in your editor's collection of postcards. This card, neatly written and dated 1926, is from a Mrs. Anderson to "Master Charles Short." She writes, "I hope you get lots of good music on this radio that Santa is bringing to you." Since there is no address on the card, we might assume that it accompanied the radio — lucky Charles!

The Sheepherder, His Dog, and His Radio

BY DOROTHY SCHECTER FROM INFORMATION PROVIDED BY BRUCE BERGSTROM AND DEWEY VANDERHOFF

A sheepherder and his dog — certainly not Nipper — listening to an Atwater Kent Model 20 in a covered wagon? Such a scene can do no less than fire the imagination of anyone interested in radio history. When Bruce Bergstrom sent us a copy of the photo, shown in Figure 1, we simply had to pursue the story.

And the story is set in Wyoming. The photo, probably taken about 75 years ago, is one of many by Charles J. Belden, (1887-1966), known as the "Cowboy Photographer," in a wonderful book by Bob Edgar and Jack Turnell entitled Brand of a Legend. The Belden Collection is housed in the Buffalo Bill Historical Center in Cody, Wyoming.

Other photos in the book, including the one in Figure 2, are by Dewey Vanderhoff of Cody, Wyoming, a contemporary photographer, who is also credited with the beautiful layout of the book. This photo shows the exterior of a wagon just like the one in Figure 1, with the exception of the rubber tires needed for modern roads. The wheels of earlier times were wooden.

According to Dewey, these wagons were common on big Wyoming ranches. Today, people are buying them and restoring them — space constraints are obviously not an issue for wagon collectors. When he took the photo in 1976, Dewey actually lived in the wagon while signing in hunters for the fall hunting season.

BACKGROUND OF THE "LEGEND"

Brand of a Legend is a chronological history of the Greybull River area of Meeteetse, Wyoming, and particularly of the Pitchfork Ranch, one of the state's oldest and most historic ranches. The founder of the Pitchfork Ranch, the setting of the sheepherder photo, was Count Otto Franc von Lichtenstein (Otto Franc), a member of a German royal family, who had immigrated with his two brothers to New York in 1866. After eleven years with them in the banana importing business, Otto set out to find a different life.

He certainly found it in Wyoming where his search for land in 1878 ended in the valley of the Upper Greybull River. Rich in grass, water, and wildlife, this land had all the makings of ranching success in the wilderness of the 19th century.

In 1903, L.G. Phelps, entrepreneur and investor, purchased the Pitchfork Ranch from the estate of Otto Franc. Otto, who had set out to hunt duck, was found shot beside a fence in a field, his gun still leaning against a barbed wire fence. The death was ruled accidental, but many thought this unlikely and suspected foul play — a Wild West story in itself, it seems.

Pitchfork grew to encompass 250,000 acres, which Phelps operated until his death in 1922. By this time, seven ranches had been added to the Phelps holdings, all under the legendary Pitchfork brand.

Brand of a Legend is dedicated to Phelps' daughter, Frances Phelps Belden, who is described as "the guiding light at the Pitchfork for 75 years." In the changing times of the 20th century, the fortunes of the ranch rose and fell. Frances' brother Eugene and her husband, photographer Charles Belden, both M.I.T. graduates, had tried to run the ranch together. However, it was not a congenial partnership, and both had other interests.

Eugene, an inventor, was not interested in money matters, while Charles had become well known for his photography and toured widely for National Geographic. It was Frances who was uncompromising in the effort to keep the ranch in her family. The authors call her one of Wyoming's "great pioneering ladies." (Co-author Jack Turnell, incidentally, married a Belden granddaughter and became manager of the ranch.)

In 1945, the ranch was divided between the two branches of the Phelps family — the Eugene Phelps family and the Frances Phelps Belden family. Eventually, the Frances Belden branch bought back the other holdings and Frances' daughter Annice Belden Somers, her children, and grandchildren continued the business. To this day, they are still running cattle on the legendary Pitchfork Ranch.

CATTLE AND SHEEP

The first cattle brought to Pichfork by Otto Franc were Herefords, a breed which L.G. Phelps and his descendants continued to upgrade. Eventually, the Pitchfork herd became a commercial leader.

In the early days of Pitchfork, as many as 100 cowboys were employed. They were a strong, proud lot. Though their lives have frequently been romanticized in literature and movies, cowboys, in fact, faced endless days of hard, dangerous work. They cared for the cattle year round, feeding and keeping them healthy in winter, and then in spring, dealing with the arduous job of calving.

Then came branding and moving the cattle to the summer upper range. Finally, the task of shipping the herds to the market began in the fall, and in the early years, the cattle were trailed to the railroad in Cody 30 miles away. With few comforts of home, the cowboys were on the trail for six weeks.

Phelps also introduced sheep to the ranch, and eventually, the sheep outnumbered the cattle. Sheep offered two cash advantages per year — mutton and wool — and often the sheep carried the ranch through hard times.

However, sheep are harder to raise than cattle, as they are more vulnerable to severe weather and other predatory animals. By 1964, the sheep numbers had dwindled, the herd was sold, and the ranch reverted wholly to cattle production.

THE SHEEPHERDER'S LIFE

Since the photo of the sheepherder (not "shepherd," by the way), his dog and his radio inspired this article, a little more should be said about the typical life of a herder. His was a more lonely existence than that of the cowboy, as he was responsible on his own for one band of sheep, usually about 1,500 head. He would keep them on good feed and water with the help of one or two good dogs.

These dogs, with their inherited ability to herd, were largely descended from border collies imported from Scotland. As our photo somehow conveys, the close relationship of man and dog was indispensable in herding. In this case, it obviously extended even to listening to the radio!

The early herders lived in tents in the summer and dugouts or cabins in the winter. The sheep wagon like the one shown in the Vanderhoff photo did not come into general use until the 1890s. It is described as a "modified prairie schooner" — the covered wagon of the pioneers.

The differences were that the wheel base was shorter, the box wider to extend out over the wheels, and the canvas cover several layers thicker to keep out the cold and heat. The door was built in two halves — the top half could be open for ventilation, while the bottom was closed to keep the dog in or out. A hinged window at the rear could be raised or lowered to allow for cross ventilation.

Under the window was a built-in bunk, and on it in this photo is the obviously new Atwater Kent Model 20 compact, just out of the box. An Atwater Kent horn speaker also sits atop the box. Note too that our sheepherder is reading Popular Science magazine, another indication of his desire to keep up with the times.The guns mounted on the wagon ceiling above make an interesting contrast to the radio — one for serious business, the other for entertainment.

This Atwater Kent 5-tube, TRF, battery set was the smaller of three versions of the Model 20, ca. 1925, that in total amounted to the largest Atwater Kent production of the times. These sets were, indeed, popular, so no wonder this one found its way to isolated parts of Wyoming.

What programming might this new radio owner have picked up? According to an A.R.C. article in November 1992, there were 465 Class A stations in the country in 1925. Perhaps several of them reached him with such exciting fare as stock or oil market reports, with maybe a little music thrown in.

But, think of what the "radio connection" meant to this lonely sheepherder. And how clever of him to be all set up for radio's "Golden Age" in the 1930s when Amos and Andy and similar shows flooded the airways. As Bruce Bergstrom said in his initial letter regarding the photo, "It truly tells a story and projects the magic of early radio."

BY DOROTHY SCHECTER FROM INFORMATION CONTRIBUTED BY BOB KROCKEL

As always, photos speak louder than words. When Bob Krockel drew our attention to this photo by Texas photographer Eugene O. Goldbeck, a link to the sheepherder photo seemed clear. Perhaps one of the about four dozen Atwater Kent radios piled up on the sidewalk outside the A.F. Beyer warehouse in San Antonio, Texas, was also bound for a Wyoming ranch. But whatever their destination, these boxes must have captured the imagination of Goldbeck whose collection of many thousands of largely panoramic prints and negatives is housed at the University of Texas in Austin.

Needless to say, we can make only a few guesses at radio identification, but most are obviously box sets. Center, sitting on what is more than likely a Model 33, is an Atwater Kent advertising lamp, a very desirable item today. Next is probably a Model 35, while on the far right, inside the box, is a Pooley lowboy console with a horn speaker on top. The box reads, "Don't Drop — Pooley." The center boxes contain Type H and Type L horn speakers. In all, a nice collection, wouldn't you say?

Emerson Model BD-197 — "Mae West"

BY RICHARD ARNOLD

Another interesting set caught Richard Arnold's eye as he continued his pursuit of unusual antique radios. This is a sought-after set, but its subtitle alone seems to be enough to attract attention. (Editor)

The Emerson Model BD-197, also known as the "Mae West" and shown in Figure 1, is a radio we don't see very often. At least the one I have is the first that I have ever seen, and I've been collecting since 1985. Needless to say, I was pretty thrilled when I found it. A rear view is shown in Figure 2.

Information on this radio is about as scarce as the radio. I've been told that some advertising might have been found in the Saturday Evening Post, but I have no access to such material.

The unusual design of the Mae West makes it one of the more sought-after sets. How many collectors know that the cabinet was designed by a Russian immigrant? He was Count Alexis de Sakhnoffsky (1901-1964). The cabinet was made for Emerson by the Ingraham Radio Cabinet Company, Bristol, Connecticut.

As shown in the photos, this set has seen better days, but at least, it's evident that here is a unique style. The BD-197 is 9" tall, 13" wide, and 6½" deep at the base. It is really nothing more than a glorified AC/DC set. It contains 6 tubes, one of which is a ballast tube. Three of the tubes use 6.3 v filaments — a 6A7 oscillator-mixer, a 6D6 IF amplifier, a 6Q7 that functions as a detector, an AF amplifier, and AVC. Two other tubes are a 25L6 output and a 25Z5 half-wave rectifier. A 49 v 3CR-241 ballast tube finishes the line-up. The operating line voltage ranges from 105 v to 125 v AC/DC.

On the front of the cabinet between the conical dial face and speaker grille are two small lights. The one on the left is blue and indicates use of the shortwave band. The other is red and indicates use of the broadcast band. The radio's tuning ranges are 540-1730 Kc for the broadcast band and 5.6-18.0 Mc for shortwave.

According to Rider, all BD chassis having numbers above 1,580,950 had a production change. One was a 4-point tone control. My set has a serial number BD 1,718,667 and has this added feature.

The four wooden knobs, left to right in Figure 1, are used for the following: music/voice-tone control, on/off volume, band switch, and tuning. The dial-scale pointer is fixed into the plastic cover at the 6 o'clock position, and the dial scales move behind it. The center spiral tips that are over the conical cones are plastic, as are the larger rings located at the back of the cones.

The grille cloth over the speaker area is a gold color and is formed into a cone. It is not stiff, but pliable.

Finding this radio has made me want to go on with "the hunt." What a great hobby!

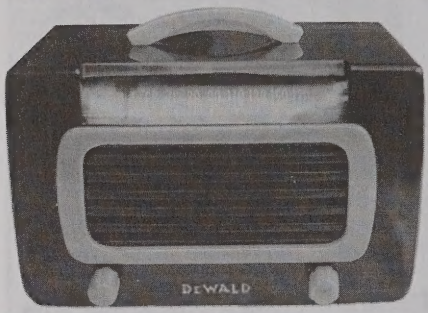
PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other old radio-related items from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short, descriptive paragraph MUST be included with each photo. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.



DEWALD MODEL 561 – This 1939 radio has a dark red Catalin case with yellow (or alabaster) trim. I believe this same set was sold under the names of Aria and Lafayette. General Electric had its own slightly different version. (Roland Frolund – Turlock, CA)

RCA VICTOR ADVERTISING CLOCK – Found for sale in a clock society flea market, this plastic dealer advertising piece was produced to extol the virtues of RCA electron tubes. (Alton A. DuBois, Jr. – Queensbury, NY)

COLUMBIA GRAFONOLA – This hand-cranked, early 1900s phonograph plays the flat disc-type records. It has manually operated shutters in the front to control the volume. (Clark Trissell – Lincoln, NE)

ZANEY-GILL CLARION– This 1931 cathedral has a 6-tube chassis. It was manufactured by the Zaney Gill Corporation of Western Avenue in Los Angeles, California. The circular grille trim is cast metal and resembles church organ pipes. The dial escutcheon, which reads "True Vox Clarion, Zaney Gill Coroporation," is also cast metal to look like the steps going up to a church. This is truly a "cathedral" radio. (Wally Worth – Wollaston, MA)

PHOTO REVIEW

AMERICAN BOSCH MODEL 5 – This 1935 TRF uses two Type 24 tubes as RF amps, another Type 24 as a detector, a Type 47 for output, and a Type 80 as a rectifier. The tuning, which is not very selective, is done by direct drive with a very small window escutcheon. The cabinet and chassis are neatly done. (George Hausske – Wheaton, IL)

WESTON MODEL 1DC VOLTMETER – The cover of this instrument appears to be copper, and it is painted red. The last patent date is July 16, 1901. (Joseph G. Jackson – Macon, GA)

HEACOCK RADIO PHONE TYPE A-12 – This mid-1920s, 4-tube receiver was made in Enterprise, Oregon, by O.M. (Doc) Heacock, who was an optometrist. The lift-top cabinet is made of solid oak. The set uses (4) Type 01-A tubes. The Bakelite panel is unusual in that all the lettering on the front, including the name and dial indicators, is written in script or cursive type. (Sam H. Jansen – Arcata, CA)

TEFIFON – Produced in 1960, this German set was made for only a year and a half. The radio is below, and in the top upper right is a tape unit that plays the large tape cartridges seen stored under the left side of the lid. Each cartridge contains six melodies. (G.W.H. Faassen – Holland)

AUCTION REPORT

Bailey & Associates Vintage Radio and Hi-Fi Auction – The Roy Stuhr Collection

August 19, 2000 — York, Nebraska

CONTRIBUTED BY TOM BAILEY

Bailey & Associates Realty & Auction Company conducted an auction of the Roy Stuhr vintage radio and hi-fi collection on Saturday, August 19, 2000, at the City Auditorium in York, Nebraska, beginning at 9:00 A.M. Roy Stuhr had been a collector for many years, but due to ill health, he was forced to sell his extensive collection. Auctioneer Tom Bailey said that because of the volume of the collection, which had been stacked on shelves 7' high and 5' deep, he could not examine each radio to determine its condition. However, most of the sets were complete.

The auction was open to absentee bids, but pick-up arrangements were necessary for large models. Bids were taken from California to New York, and from Michigan to Arizona.

Dorotheum 10th Antique Radio Auction

June 21, 2000 — Vienna, Austria

CONTRIBUTED BY ERWIN MACHO

The Auctionhaus Dorotheum held its tenth cataloged antique radio auction in Vienna, Austria, on June 21, 2000. Of the 202 lots offered for sale, 174 were sold for a total of $26,436.

The star of the show was pictured on the cover of the sale catalog — a very rare Polyphon metal-music box, which plays 24½" metal disks. The call price was $4,670, which also included 22 disks. However, an Australian collector made the highest bid by phone with $8,000. This was a new record price in Austria for such an item.

Other highlights included a 1933 Radione FSW with its original box, selling at $800, well above the estimated price of $160. A 1924 Radiola crystal set almost doubled its estimated price, selling at $166.

The next antique radio auction will be held on December 6, 2000. See Coming Radio Events for more information.

The Victor RE-75-A
Revolutionary Tuning System of 1929

BY DOUG HOUSTON

When patent restrictions prevent a company from using the best solution, extreme measures may be taken to find an alternative. The following is just such a story. (Editor)

The Victor Talking Machine Company entered the electric phonograph and radio field in 1926 shortly after it announced electrical recording in November of 1925. The company was not in the business of manufacturing electronic equipment, so the Radio Corporation of America became the supplier of the radios and electric phonograph components to Victor. In its offerings, Victor used varying levels of radio receivers, from fairly simple TRF models to RCA's high end superheterodyne chassis. By the time 1928 rolled around, RCA was able to supply its new Radiola 64 chassis for use in the big Victor combinations. These Victor sets commanded high prices — $1,750 in the case of Victor's Model 9-56.

A superheterodyne chassis could only be obtained from RCA, which controlled the superhet patents and did not license any other company to make such receivers. Thus, when Victor and Brunswick offered superheterodyne radios, they used RCA chassis. This was to change in the very near future, but until that change took place, RCA was the exclusive superheterodyne house.

Victor had established its name in electrical phonographs and radios because of the products mentioned above. But Victor wanted to be able to produce its own radio. It had to be a TRF circuit because of RCA's control of the superhet patents.

Superheterodynes had outstanding sensitivity and selectivity across the tuning range, because the intermediate frequency amplifier stages in the receiver were fixed tuned with high gain and the "front end" had no problem tracking with uniform performance over the tuning range.

In a superhet, there were no three or four RF amplifiers to hold in tune over the band. However, a TRF set had to tune all of its several stages across the dial, and make those tuned circuits stay accurate at whatever setting the listener tuned the set. Selectivity and sensitivity in the TRF varied from one end of the dial to the other. No designer had been able to overcome this phenomenon, and all acknowledged that full band tracking could not be done in a TRF receiver. Many schemes had been attempted to keep the tuning at peak performance across the band. Many of them came close, but none approached the performance of the superheterodyne.

THE "MICRO-SYNCHRONOUS" TUNING SYSTEM

In its Model RE-75, shown in Figure 1, Victor chose to solve some of the problems of the TRF circuit using a novel mechanical design. In typical TRF designs, the tuning condensers were ganged on one shaft, or were at least coupled together mechanically so as to make them operate in unison. Victor devised a scheme wherein the tuning condensers were driven in unison, and each of the condensers (there were four tuned circuits) could be "corrected" or trimmed as the tuning traversed the broadcast band. In so doing, the problems of tracking and varying sensitivity over the band would be solved. See the sidebar for a description of the claims made for the micro-synchronous tuning system.

The execution of this novel concept was a marvel of kinematic ingenuity. Victor named it their "Micro-Synchronous" tuning system. Instead of having a conventional rotary tuning arrangement, the radio uses a lever-actuated cam-wheel with a rubber rim, and a copper strip on its periphery, as shown in Figure 2. Beneath the chassis are four fully shielded tuning condensers, each with its RF coil. The tuning wheel has four driving pins extending below the chassis, with two fiber strips that actuate each tuning condenser by pulling it open or pulling it closed. The condensers resemble the Remler style condensers.

This mechanical design permits the angular travel of the tuning wheel to operate the tuning capacitors from full open to full closed in a 40 degree movement of the tuning lever, shown in Figures 3 and 4. The tuning control can be either turned or simply slid to any dial setting.

In addition to the operating mechanics of the tuning, each tuning condenser has both a fixed pivot and a movable pivot. The movable pivot has a shaft extending through to the top of the chassis. A small roller on that shaft moves on the cam surface on the periphery of the tuning wheel and moves the frame of its condenser so as to fine tune it.

Also shown in Figure 2, are the five adjusting screws on the cam-wheel for each of the tuning condensers below. So, at five points on the dial, the cam and its roller followers trim each tuned circuit to peak continuously as the cam passes the rollers. Thus, the sensitivity of the set is caused to track all the way across the dial. This scheme of tuning and continuous correcting had never been tried, or at least not accomplished previously.

THE RE-32 FAMILY HISTORY

Victor Talking Machine Company came under the ownership of RCA in early 1929. The new Victor radio line was part of the package that RCA had bagged. The radio family included two radio-only offerings, and two radio-phonograph combinations. Production was started about mid-year, and the sales record of the Victor Micro-Synchronous sets testifies to its acceptance by the public. According to Alan Douglas in Radio Manufacturers of the 1920's, there were 179,090 model R-32 sets sold, with the RE-45 phono combination selling 99,783 sets, and the R-52 model selling 33,781. Figures are not shown for the top-line RE-75 phono combination model.

Sound quality had a big role in the success of the R-32 family of radios. The amplifier-power supply in the set had the new Type 45 tubes in push-pull driving a dynamic speaker that was used on this family of radios, and never again on another model. It was in reality the first radio marketed by RCA that had a push-pull output stage. The audio performance and the quality of the two phonograph models, RE-45 and RE-75, were beyond that of similar products from other manufacturers.

There was a follow-up model family to the R-32 in 1930-31 — the R-35, R-39 and RE-57. These sets show a major redesign of the radios.

Few would dispute that Victor went the long route to do its end run around the superheterodyne patents. It was just another attempt at the long sought equivalent of a superheterodyne in a TRF. It was surely the closest that any company ever came to in doing so. Had Victor known of its upcoming absorption by RCA, the Micro-Synchronous system would surely never have been conceived.

Doug Houston, a mechanical engineer, has been collecting radios since the age of 14 when he worked as an apprentice for a radio repair shop. His collection, numbering 500-plus items, ranges from crystal sets to transistor radios, with emphasis on grandiose creations and high stature phono combinations.

The Micro-Synchronous Radio

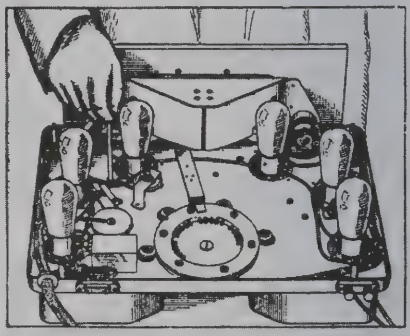
"The Victor Micro-Synchronous Radio is a power-operated tuned radio frequency receiver of the antenna type, employing an antenna coupling stage and four stages of tuned and neutralized radio frequency amplification, a detector, a first stage audio, and a power stage of push-pull amplification.

"A high degree of sensitivity is made possible by means of a system of micrometer adjustments on the tuning condensers, permitting precision automatic alignment or synchronization of the tuned radio frequency stages throughout the entire tuning range at all times. Each set of condensers is thus properly aligned at the factory and locked into position. A new method of stabilizing the radio frequency circuit permits a high degree of selectivity without causing any decrease in sensitivity.

"The instrument comprises three standard units as follows:

(1) Radio, in which is contained the R.F. stages and the detector; (2) Power Amplifier, containing the first audio, the power stage of push-pull amplification, and the rectifier; (3) Electro Dynamic Reproducer. The units are so designed that all parts are readily accessible for servicing.

"The Victor Radio is designed for operation on 105 to 120 volts, 50 to 60 cycles, alternating current. Special equipment is available for operation on 105 to 120 volts, 25 to 40 cycles. The power consumption when operating the radio is approximately 105 watts, and approximately 160 watts when operating the electrols."



Fortunately, a console provided the needed space required for the "Micro-Synchronous" chassis. This illustration shows how to adjust the neutralizing condensers, another complexity of a TRF circuit.

Blaupunkt Model Identification

Dear Editor:

I have the same Blaupunkt radio shown in the October 2000 Photo Review and owned by Joseph Jackson, except for some minor cosmetic differences. My radio is a Blaupunkt Model 22570 "Derby." The "Blaupunkt" name appears in the gap of the frame around the speaker grille at the top. The model name "Derby" is written in script letters in the location on the speaker grille where the "Blaupunkt" name appears on Mr. Jackson's radio.

As Mr. Jackson mentions, the radio can be used in an automobile with the proper attachments. There is a removable cover on the bottom of the radio. Under this cover is a connector for automobile operation.

A Great Day at AWA Meet

The following are excerpts from John Hagman's Internet report of his one great day (September 7) at the AWA meet in Rochester. His exhuberance must have been contagious. (Editor)

I have just returned from a longer than expected drive — somehow the ride home from Rochester always is that way. Camping out the night before was glorious — I didn't even burn all my wood! Since this year's meet was after Labor Day for the first time, the huge Cayuga Lake State Park campground (30 miles east of Rochester) was almost totally empty, and the dogs staked out dozens of sites as our own.

I arrived at the meet at 5:40 A.M. and had no trouble parking right on the I-90 side of the hotel lot. Though I usually never buy anything with my flashlight, this time I did find a neat Stromberg-Carlson chairside with that funky, almost ugly style the company seemed to love. By 6:30, I had bought a Philco 16B early version tombstone and a Philco 20 with intact grille and cabinet, but no speaker, both for $200 total.

I wandered around... picked up a vernier dial, half a dozen knobs, an Atwater Kent grille cloth, capacitors, wire, tubes, etc. — this essential small-parts shopping is the really irreplaceable part of flea markets. I just couldn't have done it on eBay — no way!

All in all, I had a great time and accomplished a lot. I really found everything I needed, more than I expected. But, one thing that was quite unpleasant was this braying noise that kept washing over the crowd — eBay, eBay, eBay ...cheaper on eBay ...I saw ...sold on eBay ...big, bad eBay has ruined everything ...eBay, schmeBay, I say.

eBay has replaced swaps like cybersex has replaced real sex — in reality, it has just put a dent in it. Preference for real human contact is simply not going to go away.

Thanks to AWA for a great meet — it's always an incomparable experience and worth every minute of the drive.

John Hagman, Burlington, VT

Kudos and Correction

Dear Editor:

The article on the Military Radio Collectors Group annual meet and on various pieces of equipment in the October 2000 issue was very well done. I want to thank you all very much. I have already received several comments from your readers.

One minor correction: the photo on page 22 states that the German battleship Bismark was sunk in 1944. The correct date is May 27, 1941, at 10:39 in the morning.

Thanks again,

Hank Brown, Lancaster, CA

The incorrect date did not come from the author, Hank Brown, but from another source. We rely on the accuracy of the information supplied by contributors, but, of course, the buck stops here. (Editor)

Preserve the Muchow Collection

Dear Editor:

Has anyone given any thought to forming an organization to preserve Dr. Muchow's radio collection intact as a museum?

I know that everyone who has attended the ARCI radio meets at Elgin, Illinois, has enjoyed viewing this incredible collection. It would be a serious misfortune to all radio historians, researchers, and collectors, if we missed the opportunity to save this collection for future generations.

Phillip Drexler, St. Paul, MN

As we all know, there are many collections out there worth preserving, and many museums have been started by interested groups. Unfortunately, to keep such an enterprise going requires an enormous investment of time and money on the part of survivors and/or preservers. If that kind of commitment is not possible, the collection must be sold. We can take comfort in the fact that the individual items will enhance the collections of other people who will also become temporary caretakers of these treasures. (Editor)

Another "Dummies" Book

Dear Editor:

Another book that the "radio dummies" could look for is Elements of Radio by Marcus and Horton. This book was published by Prentice Hall for the War Department in 1943 for military training courses in radio. It is a basic text and contains only basic high school math and circuit diagrams. It's possible that used book dealers might have it.

DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS • DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

Advertising must be prepaid, except as noted below; see "Payment" paragraph above for details. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black ink (not pencil) on white. If used, reverse type must be limited to 25% of the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85-line screen; otherwise, add $16.00 per photo for screening. Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.

If you are confused by these requirements and terms, please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/8-page or larger ads and only if requested when the ad is submitted.

First business card per advertiser is at lower rate.

The 3-month rates represent about an 11% discount, the 6-month rates 23%, the 12-month rates 30%. Placement requests: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

CLASSIFIED ADS • DETAILS AND RATES

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 29¢ each. See details below. Classified ads sent by mail, fax, e-mail or by any other method must be received (not just postmarked!) by Noon Eastern Time on the classified ad deadline date to guarantee inclusion in the current issue. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on opposite page for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Faxed & e-mailed ads: Please see additional information on opposite page.

When including ads with other A.R.C. correspondence, write the ads on a separate piece of paper. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

To minimize our typing errors: Please write legibly. Use both capital and small letters. Do not use a dash between words. Carefully write the following numbers and letters (especially in model numbers) since some can look alike; for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Also: 0, O , o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which we might mistake as a more common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's annotations are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers must agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied, and to comply with a buyer's refund request on unaltered returned items.

The publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Names other than the advertiser will be edited out of ads. Ads with non-radio-related items will be returned or edited unless the non-radio-related items are for trade of radio-related items, or they are incidental to and appear at the end of an otherwise acceptable ad. The publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. See also Publishing Rights on opposite page.

Clubs: Since club activities receive free coverage on the Coming Radio Events pages, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. A discount on display advertising is available for clubs.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: NOON ET– 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, AUCTION, MEET, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name (or company name) and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Vacuum Tube Repair Wafers

These tube repair wafers are solid-state devices for quick and easy repair of early vacuum tubes. The wafer is installed by simply sliding it over the tube pins and reinserting the tube into its socket. If the filament is intact, but there is little or no emission, the filament may be lit for best visual effect. However, the tube can be open filament.

No change in radio operating voltages is required. Any number of tubes may be repaired in a radio. If wafers are installed on all tubes, the B+ voltage may usually be reduced without sacrificing volume or sensitivity. Performance will vary between radio models.

$10.00/each ($7.50/ea. 3 or more)

Antique Radio Power Supply

The H15/ H16 power supplies operates most tube type battery radios from low cost batteries. The H15/H16 steps up the voltage from a 6V battery to provide 22.5V, 45V, and 90VDC for the "B" voltage requirements.

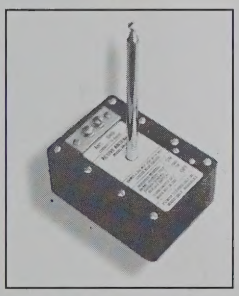
A very desirable feature of the H15/H16 is the method of switching power on and off. This function is provided by the switch on the radio. No radio modification required.

The "A" voltage required by the radio can be from "C" or "D" flashlight batteries or from a 6V gelled electrolyte battery when operating 5V tubes. When operating 1.5, 2, or 3V tubes the H15/H16 can be powered by 4 "C" or "D" flashlight batteries or from a 6V gelled electrolyte battery. The gelled electrolyte battery can operate both the H15/H16 and the 6V "A" supply for 5V tubes from one battery.

Order the H15 of parallel filaments or the H16 for series filaments.

The compact size, 4"X4"X3/4", allows the unit to be installed with batteries in the battery compartment of most radios.

H15 or H16: $99.50. Accessories: "D" cell holders: $6.00 per set. 6V 10AH battery $31.00. Battery charger $45.00. 1.5 - 90V socket $9.50.



Active Antenna

Allows antique radios which were designed for a long wire outdoor antenna to operate on a 42" indoor whip antenna. Portable, operates from a 9 volt battery.
